Pay a visit to Lady Liberty

The Statue of Liberty is the most famous landmark in the Big Apple and perhaps the entire country. This colossal copper goddess was gifted to America by France in the 1880s and she decorates the city's Upper Bay like a welcome beacon.

While you're there, climb her 162 steps to take in awe-inspiring views of Manhattan's skyline and visit the Statue of Liberty Museum, which sheds light on the story behind this world-renowned landmark.

Cross the Golden Gate Bridge

A marvel of human ingenuity and engineering prowess, this suspension bridge was once the longest in the world - and it's certainly still one of the most spectacular. View the Golden Gate Bridge from the shoreline or from up high with a helicopter tour.

Alternatively, travel across its length on foot, bike, or car (make sure you pay the toll in advance if traveling into the city) for mesmerizing views.

Celebrate Mardi Gras in New Orleans

It's big, loud, colorful and unlike any other carnival in the world. Mardi Gras takes place in New Orleans every year, kicking off the day before Ash Wednesday.

Immerse yourself in a fortnight celebrating the very best of Louisiana's culture with colorful parades and street music. Rooted in the history of the region, this non-stop party is an unmissable experience.

Kayak around glaciers in Kenai Fjords

Alaska's vast wilderness areas make the rest of the USA's national parks and forests seem rather small.

Kenai Fjords is one of the most spectacular, and there's no better way to experience it than from a kayak.

The chilly waters of the national park are lined with jagged blue and white ice and rocky pinnacles, and are home to orcas, sea otters, and humpback whales.

Exploring with a paddle means you can view all of this natural beauty up close. Conditions can be windy and choppy so a guided tour is recommended for less-experienced paddlers.

Escape from Alcatraz

Boarding a ferry to visit the island prison of Alcatraz is practically a rite of passage when visiting San Francisco. Tour the cellhouse and learn the history of the inmates who were incarcerated there, as well as the tales of those who tried to escape.

The audio tour is voiced by former guards, bringing the past vividly and eerily to life. The daring can also take a night tour and experience the infamous prison in the dark.

Marvel at Grand Prismatic Spring

Inside Yellowstone National Park in the northwest corner of Wyoming, Grand Prismatic Spring is the largest hot spring in the United States and the third largest in the world. Plunging to a depth of 121 feet and covering an area roughly the size of a soccer field, the boiling spring can be safely witnessed from the park's purpose-built boardwalk.

With its deep cyan core, enclosed by fiery yellow and orange rings, this rather terrifying marvel of Mother Nature has to be seen to be believed.

Celebrate Independence Day

Few things are more American than waving a red, white, and blue flag while enjoying a classic community cook-out. Independence Day takes place across the country every July 4 and it's an event not to be missed.

Philadelphia, Washington DC, and Boston offer some of the country's best Independence Day celebrations. Stay out for the evening and catch the fireworks as revelers celebrate independence from the British Empire.

Scale the tallest building in the western hemisphere

Completed in 2014, One World Trade Center soars up 104 floors and stretches some 1,776 feet into the sky. With an identical footprint to New York's original Twin Towers, the building has become a symbol of hope and resilience.

It also happens to be the tallest building in the western hemisphere. Sip cocktails in the skyscraper's 101st floor restaurant, or hit the observation deck to soak up 360-degree views across Manhattan. If you dare, step on the observatory's glass floor for an unforgettable perspective on the streets below.

Explore New Mexico's white sand dunes

New Mexico's White Sands National Park is the world's largest gypsum dunefield, covering 275 square miles of desert. Cycle through the park to take in unobstructed views, go horseback riding, or simply drive along the park's roads, flanked by waves of alabaster sand as far as the eye can see.

You can even go sledding down these unique dunes for the ultimate thrill.

Catch a Broadway show

Sure, you can see a play or a musical pretty much anywhere, but Broadway is the home of theater. Watching a production of Hamilton or The Lion King in the heart of New York City is guaranteed to take your breath away.

The music, the story, the choreography, the place - it all comes together to immerse you in a new world. Even smaller shows with cheaper tickets will pack a punch, and you'll still leave with those bragging rights.

Tour Europe in Las Vegas

Glowing and glittering like a bizarre neon oasis in the Mojave Desert, there's nowhere quite like Las Vegas. The home of gambling isn't just about slot machines, high-end hotels, and roulette tables, though.

Here, you can also visit a replica of the Eiffel Tower, take a romantic gondola trip along the canals of faux Venice, and ride the High Roller, the largest observation wheel in North America. Just remember: what happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas.

Visit the world's largest library

The Library of Congress in Washington DC was founded in 1800 and is home to more than 170 million items including historic books and papers, making it the world's largest library by collection size. It's also one of the most beautiful.

Visitors shouldn't miss the Main Reading Room with its dominant bronze statues, painted dome, and precious marble clock. Free guided tours run regularly but you'll need to reserve a timed entry pass.

Admire Mount Rushmore

Surrounded by the glorious Black Hills in South Dakota, Mount Rushmore National Memorial brings the history of America to life with giant carved faces of former presidents George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt, and Abraham Lincoln.

The mountain itself peaks at 5,725 feet, while the memorial covers two square miles and can be reached via the Presidential Trail. Avoid the thickest crowds by visiting before 9am or after 3.30pm.
